

INITIAL MANIPULATION OF FEAR - Part 1.

A huge mountain like Mont Everest was standing in front of me, but it is all green even at the top, without any ice.

I stand at the foot of the mountain, at the edge of the path that unwinds in front of me and disappears in the woods. I stand there and I don't want to follow the path. Somewhere inside I know that if I step on it, I have to climb to the top of the mountain. I know I have to go there, but I don't want to go through the struggle and climb up all the way to the top.

As long as I stand at the foot of the mountain and I have not stepped on that sidewalk, nothing happens. But I know, once I step on that path, I have to go and I can not turn and go back, so I have to climb to the top of the mountain, and I don't want to. It's like I've already done it and experienced it.

And the whole road is in the forest, only the top, a few meters below the top, only 2 to 3 meters is without trees, it's like a line. The whole road is under the trees and so there is very little light. The road is in twilight as if it is in the dark. During the day walking is easy, because the sun's rays penetrate through the leaves of the trees, but at night it is totally dark because the light of the stars can not go through the leaves of the trees. Everything is in the dark. Only that little piece of road below the top of the mountain is all in the light.

The principle is that once you embark on that journey, you have to go and can't go back.

It is so deeply written in me that these are the rules that apply to all. I do not know if it is my experience that I have already experienced or these are the rules of the game that I do not like. I already know what I don't like about the rules. They took away my free will. I can not decide freely to go back, only to continue. And that's what I don't like, that is why I can't decide now whether I want to go on this journey. Just the thought of it and I get shivers. And also, I do not like not seeing the top of the mountain. I have to walk the road through the dense forest and I don't know how far I am from the top of the mountain, I can't look at it, and I can't even go back. I don't know where I am. Screw them. I don't like this game they offered me now.

Question: Ask your higher self, why did they offer you this option?

Answer: I can freely decide to stand there forever, that is the only option I have. These are the rules. I can freely decide whether or not to play the game and stand there forever. It's always a game and every game has rules. Each participant is free to decide whether to play the game with the rules that the game has, or decide not to play the game. It is only YES or NO question.

The peak cannot be seen because the outcome of the game is never known in advance. If any game is played fairly and none of the players cheats, none of the participants knows in advance how it will turn out, and this means that no one will see the peak in advance.

The path that leads to the top is not the only one, because it spreads infinitely into many different paths, sideways, turns, possibilities that lead to the top, however, none of them leads down, or back. The way it works is that even if we think that we are turning on a road leading back, we are actually just prolonging the way up, because for a while we may feel that we are walking down, after a while, we will realize that the road starts to rise again, and we have just wasted the time because the road goes up anyway.

This is the principle of this journey. That's the rule.

Whatever the direction, the road always goes up. It won't let us go back. These roads are like a huge tree with an endless number of branches and small twigs. All branches and twigs face the sky. They're not turned toward the ground. And all these roads are equal because they all go up.

If you imagine a huge tree and a beautiful crown and those branches at the end around the perimeter of the tree crown, you can pass from one to the other and you can reach the top of the perimeter. And the same goes for the road, and it is up to the man how and what paths he chooses to reach the top of that mountain and to complete his journey.

What bothers me about the game is that if I want to go back, it's not allowed! I do not like it.

I don't like this game at all because I don't like this rule. It's irritating me. And very.

I perceive that when I decide to go on that path, it is like a tree trunk first. Then come branches and then twigs, a very dense net, where there are a lot of variations and you can decide, which way you choose and which you go to the top. There are many opportunities available and that is fine, however, the fact that I can't go back is very irritating to me. It's a very strange game.

Where I am now, where I stand now I feel very comfortable, there is safety, security, peace. I have no reason to change that. I am the soul who decides whether to be born.

The tree trunk represents the period of pregnancy when the body develops for me and that path is the part of me being born, and the infinite number of paths represents all decisions of the particular human being - the person after birth, which path the person will embark on.

The top of the mountain, when you come out of the forest, when there is the Light, this represents the period when the physical body leaves the soul.

This is the Light, where soul has all Knowledge and Wisdom, and therefore it is in the Light again. Meanwhile, I am in the half-darkness of the forest and the sun, which shines through the leaves on the branches, allows me to see the Light, but I am not in the Light and at night I am in the dark. That is when I do not have this Knowledge and I do not know where are going.

And even though I think I'm going back, it's not true because I'm always going forward because it's an experience that becomes part of me. And as a soul by being in Light before being born, I am absolutely safe, I have Light hence I do not fancy to enter this game again.

I will do so only because someone else's soul, who is already walking in the tree on the path, is calling for help. And because this soul is in the dark and half-dark it can't find its way, or it thinks it lost its way, I'll decide to go on that way to help the soul.

I do not know why, but I feel that I no longer need to enter this journey for myself. I do so only because some of the souls who follow these paths have asked for help, and I will enter that path for them to help them.

So many times I walked this way along those different paths, I walked on it countless times that I decided for myself to stay safe and in the light. I feel good there.

Now I have noticed that if on this Tree of Life, there are many human beings that get stuck and beg for help, their prayers are like the little lights that shine on that tree and where the branches create nodes, there are clusters of small lights.

If lots of human beings get stuck and then beg for help, they make the tree shine with the light of their prayers, then on the other side, where I am now, some souls start to gather, a soul council takes place where they advise on how to help all souls who ask for help.

At that time, this assembly of souls creates a plan of assistance in which it is determined which of these souls are born into the Tree of Life, what mission they will have, what opportunities and space they will gain - an extremely „sacred space„. I feel a great awe in me. It is absolutely sacred when the soul is allowed to enter there, into this place and into this space where the experiences and emotions of all beings are stored. Soul can read everything in this sacred space, it can feel and touch the energies and emotions, it can learn to become part of it. It has Knowledge. Within the soul's Mission, which it is supposed to fulfil, it can enter into different parts of this „sacred space„.

In each part of the „sacred space„, different emotions and experiences are stored, and according to soul's mission it can enter one, two, three or all parts of the „sacred space„.

There will be a very thorough preparation of souls to fulfil its mission. And when all souls are prepared and trained, then in that order, what role in that story they will play on that path will enter and they will be born in this order.

This happens when a very large number of human beings ask for help. When mankind is very much taken over by fear when the power of fear on Mother Earth increases greatly and strikes with an unimaginably strong force. Then the reaction of immense helplessness and its speed how it is spread will cause that human beings will send out a deep plea, It is like as if helplessness would spread over mankind that would kill the LOVE on earth. Then, the help will come from the other side.

At the same time, these souls who have taken on the role in the story will receive a help from the Creator in the sense that within that life, through the action of divine synchronicity, all these souls and their paths will come together at one point so they can go together to the top to help and support each other through their Light, which they can create by mutual support and cooperation. Thus they help others so they can also walk along their path of their lives to show them the light of Faith and to help them return Hope, Faith, Trust and Love in their lives.

And it depends on the power of Fear that affects Mother Earth, whether those souls who have decided to come back to Mother Earth will help a large number of people to find the Light of Faith and walk through life with Love. Or the fear is stronger and they will not receive the Light of Faith that those human beings have brought to them in this incarnation.

Many times over many ages and in various civilizations many souls have accepted this task.

But many times, the fear's predominance on Mother Earth was so great that they failed to fully fulfil the mission that they came with here on Mother Earth. It was because at that time fear had succeeded in manipulating their original mission and bringing a false image of what they originally have brought to Mother Earth.

FEAR is always the one that manipulates, it is never the LOVE.
Remember that.

Fear creates manipulation and it creates it precisely to give you a false picture of what Love brings to you.

And whenever the power of fear increases and enhances on Mother Earth, a group of these souls, blessed by the Knowledge of Love, come to Mother Earth to help eliminate the effect of fear on human beings through their actions.

Similarly, whenever the influence of Love increases on Mother Earth, when Love in human beings potentiates, fear will decide to attack human beings again with its power.

You can think of it as a swing, where on one side is the action of Fear and on the other side is the action of Love.

You as a human being, can stand upright and be in balance only when you stand in the middle of the swing. Both extreme positions are shaky and you cannot stand firmly and upright on your feet, but in the middle, you can stand firmly on your feet, it is a point where nothing will disturb you.

At that time you are filled with Love, but at the same time you perceive that natural fear is part of you, but in this case, fear naturally protects you because it protects your life so that you can see and recognize the incoming danger and thus prevent it.
